“Is the Process of Arbitration really Consensual? Balancing Party Autonomy with Tribunal Control”

At this special AIDC session, Hilary Heilbron QC will discuss a number of interesting aspects of arbitration including:

- the expectation of parties from the arbitral process, particularly when coming from different legal systems
- effectively and efficiently steering an arbitration while meeting expectations and joint wishes of the parties
- whether parties can be brought into the process against their will?

When: Wednesday, 30 November 5:00pm for 5.30pm

Where: AIDC, Level 16, 1 Castlereagh Street, Sydney

Cost: $45 (reduced rate for ACICA and CI Arb Members $35)

Light refreshments will be provided. Book now as places are limited.

Hilary Heilbron is a barrister and Queen’s Counsel practising from Brick Court Chambers, London. She recently appeared as leading counsel in the Supreme Court in the important case on the New York Convention, Dallah Real Estate and Tourism Holding Company v Ministry of Religious Affairs, Government of Pakistan. She sits regularly as an arbitrator in ICC, LCIA, ICDR and ad hoc arbitrations. She is the author of “A Practical Guide to International Arbitration in London” and the chapter on Damages in the Second Edition of “The Leading Arbitrators’ Guide to International Arbitration”.
